Hello, I've just joined your group and would like to offer my views on new buildings.

I currently live in Great Malvern. However, my daughter, who is physically disabled, lives in Colwall with her partner (also disabled) and 3 year old daughter. I desperately want to move closer to them and have been looking for land in Colwall to build a small eco/passive house for myself and, if possible, another for my daughter and family. Unfortunately, the price of land, especially in Colwall, plus planning restrictions, have made this aim virtually impossible.

I would suggest that a discussion be held addressing the issues of affordability of land – particularly the issue of big developers pricing the ordinary person out of the market.

I love the village and find the community very vibrant and welcoming – I would really like the opportunity to become involved in community life.

Kind regards
